Kassia Omohundro Wedekind and literacy coach Christy Hermann Thompson have spent years comparing notes on how to build effective classroom communities across the content areas. How they wondered, can we lay the groundwork for classroom conversations that are less teacher directed and more conducive to student to student dialogue? Their answers start with Hands Down Conversations, an innovative discourse structure in which students' ideas and voices take the lead while teachers focus on listening and facilitating. In addition to classroom stories and examples, Christy and Kassia provide 28 micro lessons designed to help K-5 students develop and exercise their speaking and listening muscles. Inside Hands Down Speak Out, you'll learn how to build talk communities that are accessible to everyone, especially those whose voices are often traditionally left out of classroom discourse. Analyze classroom conversations in order to plan next steps for developing the classroom talk community. Plan and facilitate three types of conversations across literacy and math. Christy and Kassia believe that the development of dialogue skills is worth the investment of time, not only because it has the power to deepen our understanding of literacy and mathematics, but also to deepen our understanding of ourselves, our communities, and the world.

Everyday Mathematics, 2001. Provides suggested activities for introducing math concepts to children at home, covering counting, measures, time, estimation, patterns, collecting data, time, geometry, and more, and includes lists of children's books containing mathematical ideas and a book of worksheets with tips for parents. Tested Linda Perlstein, 2015-03-14. The pressure is on at schools across America. In recent years, reforms such as No Child Left Behind have created a new vision of education that emphasizes provable results, uniformity, and greater attention for floundering students. Schools are expected to behave more like businesses and judged almost solely on the bottom line: test scores. To see if this world is producing better students, Linda Perlstein immersed herself in a suburban Maryland elementary school. The resulting portrait, detailed, human, and truly thought-provoking, is marked by the same narrative gifts and expertise that made Not Much Just Chillin' so illuminating. The school once deemed a failure is now held up as an example of reform done right. Perlstein explores the rewards and costs of that transformation through the experiences of the people who lived it. Nine-year-olds meditate to activate their brains before exams, and kindergartners write paragraphs. Teachers attempt to address diverse needs at the same time they are expected to follow daily scripts and feel compelled to focus on topics that will be tested at the expense of those that won't. The principal attempts to keep it all together in the face of immense challenges. Perlstein provides the first detailed view of how new education policies are modified by human realities. Tested will be talked about, thought about, written about, and will almost certainly play an important role in the national debate as the federal education law comes up for renewal.
